The world of chewers and smokers must have tobacco, and they can only get it from the farmers. Let the farmers lock their doors until they get their priges. That's what other folks do.

When Mr. Roosevelt's abscess got to be troublesome and dangerous he quit every engagement and submitted to treatment. The coal strike-abscess came to a head months ago and should have been opened promptly. The whole body is seriously affected now.

What do you think of that fellow out in Minnesota who killed himself because "he found out what an ass he was?"

Brother, call off the dogs. You may push the hunt too far.

The world of chewers and smokers in the Amherst cowhiding case, is still after Judge Cambpell and all the other rudges. One of the papers has this to to say of him:

"He gives notice that hereafter he will keep an eye on Virginia judges, and if he finds them straying from the path of rectitude will make sure of his facts and print them to the world."

It seems that Dr. Crawford is playing around very close to the place where he may tumble overboard. When a man sets himself as a judge of the motives and actions of his fellow shall be either to himself or others. The man who keeps his eye fixed on the straight and narrow path that he is trying to travel himself not of en has a chance to go ahead with one eye easting about for the shortcomings of his neighbor.

Dr. Crawford may soon be regarded as being absurb. The very great body of Virginia judges are above reproach, and if one of them might be found in the other than the strain of the
